This square is connected by a walk of three levels. A new landmark for the residents of Dubrovnik. A succession of open spaces in which to meet, to relax, to converse and to enjoy summer activities. And a creation of an urban design designed to create contemporary society that works to recover with the old city.

The outdoor activities, summer festivals, music concerts, outdoor cinema, all sports in general take a place here.

To have maximum flexibility is intended area under the upper level for storage. The public space may return to its original state when the activity ends. The square space can shelter from the sun or the sun and rain through the wooden space. It also stores the people under the main building, with a total capacity of more than 1000 people.

The middle level is a new commercial and social centrality. A walk promenade runs through and connects the three spaces in a pedestrian network by roads and public facilities.

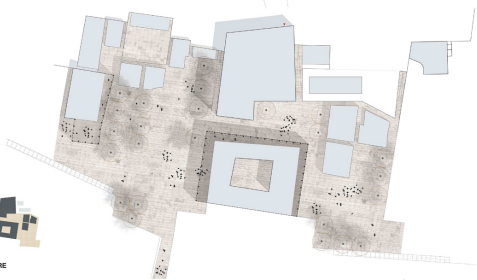

The residents of Dubrovnik as well as the tourists can enjoy shopping, cafes and restaurants overlooking the sea.

The higher level is intended to slow the barrier which means the road. Small squares collect circulation that goes down the wall and giving access to new housing. This level is the link between modern residential city and the new centrality.

The connector between levels is done by concrete stairs that allow privileged views of the wall.
